CONCEPT NOTE

Indigenous people are still one of the world's most marginalized communities. They have their unique culture, language, traditions, and rituals. However, due to globalization and industrialization, they have been a tremendous decline in their cultural practices and knowledge. The concept of literature is well-recognized in the ancient times of their tribes, and the tribes have not been able to pass on their knowledge to the next generations.

Tribal literature represents the oral and written traditions of diverse tribal societies across the globe. It is a vast reservoir of culture, mythology, legends, lore, and self-identity. The tribal societies are perceived as stagnant and irrelevant to the modern era, but they continue to play a crucial part in forming the modern world.

Tribal literature is a genre of literary texts created by indigenous people worldwide to express their distinct cultural traditions, experiences, values, identity, community, spirituality, and survival. They reflect the ways in which indigenous people have reimagined and reinterpreted themselves, their communities, and their beliefs. Tribal literature encompasses a variety of forms, like oral narratives, folktales, songs, myths, poetry, and fiction. The aim of this conference is to investigate the self-exploratory aspects in tribal literature. Specifically, the conference focuses on the various ways in which tribal literature serves as a mirror to the self and it explores the influence of tribal literature in that marginalized society. It will further discuss how tribal literatures have re-imagined, portrayed and sustained the self and the ways in which they provide alternative models of selfhood and personhood.

OBJECTIVES

The objective of the seminar is to create an interdisciplinary platform for scholars, researchers, artists, and students to engage with tribal literature and explore the manifold approaches to narrate the self.

1. To explore the impact of oral traditions and written literature on indigenous heritage and cultural practices.
2. To explore the relevance of tribal literature in contemporary society.
3. To explore the self-exploratory aspects of the select narratives of tribal literature.
4. To understand the current state of indigenous knowledge and practices in tribal communities in the modern era.

Megajournals vs. Regular Journals

Discussion Slide

Limited scope of peer review. In many cases, the scope of a peer review for a megajournal tends to be technical information presented. It might not assess whether the research is new or even important.

Broad range of subjects Unlike traditional journals, megajournals accept and publish research articles from many disciplines. They do not specialise in a specific discipline or subject.

Article Processing Charges (APCs) APCs for publishing in megajournals are usually lower than those of traditional journals.

Turnaround time. They have quicker turnaround times between reviewers and authors.

About the College

Sree Ayyappa College for Women came into existence in the year 1970. The institution established with the motto, Siksha Dharmena Shobathe (Education Sparkles through Moral Excellence) is run by Sree Ayyappa Educational Society. The Society formed by the Malayalam speaking linguistic minority of Kanniyakumari District and registered under the Societies Registration Act of 1956 founded a junior college in the year 1969. But as the greater need was for the higher education of women students, the Management with the consent of the affiliated Madurai University converted the institution into a women's college in the next year.

The college is situated at the foot of Vellimalai, the tall end of Western Ghats. The tranquility and serenity of the idyllic surroundings provides congenial atmosphere for academic pursuits. Located close to the National Highways at a distance of 7 kilometres from Nagerecchi, students gain easy access to transport facilities.

Re-accredited by NAAC with B Grade (3rd cycle), the college offers Graduate courses in Arts and Science subjects and Commerce, Post-graduate courses in English, Mathematics and Commerce and M.Phil. course in English. Department of English and Department of Mathematics got upgraded to Research Centres in 2012 and 2018 respectively.
